Win Honors

Two Delmar students at Saint Agnes School, Albany, have been cited for second quarter honors, it was announced by Hamilton H. Bookhout, headmaster.

Named to the High Honor Roll for academic averages of 90% or better are Holly Leese, 8th grade, daughter of Dr. & Mrs. Joseph Leese, Mosher Rd.; and Elizabeth Fleming, 9th grade, daughter of Mr. & Mrs. Louis, E. Fleming, Delaware Avenue.

Vision Test

Through the sponsorship of the Pre-school Parents' Organization there will be a vision screening on March 10 and 11 between the hours of 9 A.M. and noon. The need is still present to screen 3, 4, and 5 year old pre-schoolers for the presence of amblyopia or "the lazy eye" as it is more commonly known. Through the guidance of the Albany Branch of the Association of the Blind, volunteer mothers will be trained in the approved technique of vision screening for this eye malady.

These screenings will take place Monday, March 10, at the Coeymans Reformed Church; they will be held Monday, March 10, and Tuesday, March 11, at Selkirk Fire House #1, South Bethlehem Fire House, and the Ravena Congregational Christian Church. The importance of these screenings cannot be stressed enough. If your child participated in a similar program last year, it is beneficial to have it done once again this year. Only through annual screenings can this condition be detected, thereby enabling corrective treatment to be instituted.

All parents are urged to bring their pre-schoolers to the screening. There is no charge and no appointment is necessary for this service; everything is being done to make it accessible in the local areas. If there is anyone interested in helping with this worthwhile community project, or has any questions regarding this project, please contact Mrs. Dianne Kling, 756-2590 or Mrs. Patricia Lawson, 756-6364.

CYO Play

St. Thomas' CYO is sponsoring a production of "The Man Who Came to Dinner," by Kaufman and Hart. The Broadway comedy is about Sheridan Whiteside, a famed radio figure who breaks his hip on the front steps of the Stanley residence. When he moves in the house to heal, he brings with him a host of peculiar objects, from penguins to the widest assortment of celebrity oddities one could ever hope to find on stage. The unsurpassably facetious Sheridan Whiteside is played by Marty Dineen as the man who came to dinner and stayed for a tremendous lawsuit. He is supported by...
Karen Langhauser, Celeste Pettjohn, Joe Gilday, Jim Pert, and Larry Eddo. Lisa Churchville has the big job of directing the play.

Play dates are February 28 and March 1 in St. Thomas’ School Auditorium. Tickets may be obtained at the door for a one dollar donation.

The team was the most powerful in the history of swimming at the center according to Betty Clark, Aquatic Director, and was the first to defeat the West Point Age group swimmers as well as Syracuse, Troy, Poughkeepsie, and Schenectady Jewish centers to win the championship of the league. They won 12 meets during the season.

U. S. Grant

Bethlehem Central High School has been awarded a $15,000 federal grant for use in developing a model library resource center for study of nonwestern countries and areas.

The funds will be used to purchase books, films, magazines, newspapers, and video tapes related to eastern, middle-eastern, African, and other non-western cultures. All materials will be chosen to emphasize man and the human aspects of the cultures - rather than stressing history and governmental institutions. The feeling is that by learning to understand the people, students will develop a more meaningful and appreciative understanding of the problems they face and the institutions they have created.

Application for the grant, which was received under the Elementary & Secondary Aid to Education Act of 1965, was motivated by a concern that students do not know enough about non-western cultures because most high school classes in art, history and literature tend to stress only western traditions and contributions to man's advancement. Mr. Gordon Molyneux, who helped prepare the application together with Mr. Frederick Pickett, the High School librarian, is particularly concerned about the teaching of non-western cultures. He and Mr. DeCecco, another member of the social studies department, have instituted a course in Eastern Studies for students this year and other special area studies courses are in the planning stages.

While the new materials will be used extensively by students enrolled in the Eastern Studies course, a much more comprehensive use program is planned by the library and school district. In-service workshops will be conducted to acquaint all teachers with the non-western library acquisitions, and to provide them with background information necessary for teaching about these areas. All materials will be cataloged as to their usefulness for presentations to all grade levels - from kindergarten to high school. If an elementary teacher wishes to cover some aspect of non-western culture with her class, a special kit of materials will be sent out to her from the special resource center. High school students will be encouraged to perform independent research projects making use of the resource center, and a student written newsletter - describing new materials as they are acquired - is also planned as a class project for students taking the special area studies courses.

A committee of teachers and librarians, with special interest or backgrounds in the field of non-western culture, will meet early next week to begin implementing the program. All of the new materials will be placed in a specific area of the newly enlarged High School library so they will be easily accessible to all students and teachers in the district.

Bethlehem school administrators and teachers are attempting to obtain federal and state grants whenever possible in order to expand the program and educational opportunities for district children without placing a greater burden on local tax payers.

When a girl's face is her fortune, it usually runs into an attractive figure.

Salesman: "Are you sure the boss isn't in his office?"
Secretary: "Do you doubt his word?"

Some people feel the government owes them a living. The rest of us would settle for a small tax refund.

We know a man of few words — he keeps using them over and over.

When he found a girl who made him feel like time was standing still, he knew it was running out.

Family Night

"I really didn't know that there were so many people that cared," writes SP/4 Ronald T. Deitz from his post with the 25th Infantry Division in South Viet Nam. In a "thank you" note for the packages and letters he received through the Town of Bethlehem Committee That Cares, he expresses the sentiments of the men whose names are on the Committee's list.

Currently there are forty names on the list. To do honor to the parents and families of these men, mostly from Bethlehem, the Committee has designated the March 6 meeting date as "Family Night." This will be the third annual occasion for this event to be held at Nathaniel Adams Blanchard Post 1040 American Legion in Elsmere. The session starts at seventy-thirty. It will be open to the public.

Major General Almerin C. O'Hara, Chief of Staff to the Governor, as head of the New York State Division of Military and Naval Affairs, will address the gathering. Last year he visited the Republic of Viet Nam and made a tour of the battle-torn nation.

The Committee is made up of twenty-five of the veterans, women's, church, fraternal, social, fire and other organizations of the town. It meets the first Thursday of the month at the Legion hall. The "family night" is among the several morale-boosting activities sponsored by the Committee.

Says Committee Chairman Alexander J. Woehrle, "As much as we abhor the war in Viet Nam we recognize that our men are there to do a duty for our Country and all who believe in freedom for mankind. Our prayers since the Committee was formed have been for an end to this war. Only time can reveal when our prayers will be answered. Meanwhile, the organizations which form this committee have pledged themselves to a cause which bring responses such as appear in the letter from Ronald Deitz."

The Family Night Chairman is Raymond A. LaMoy of the Delmar Rotary Club. Mrs. Ethel R. Haberer of the Delmar Progress Club is mailing invitations to the families of the men in Viet Nam. The list of men in Viet Nam is kept up-dated by Laurence R. Moses, a member-at-large on the Committee. He is among the several individuals in the group who has a son in the Armed Forces if not necessarily currently in Viet Nam. The list of men in Viet Nam is kept posted at the Delmar Post Office. Through the Reverend Charles H. Kaulfuss, pastor of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in Elsmere, the list is distributed to the various churches in the Town of Bethlehem. William J. O'Neil of Bethlehem Lodge of Elks is chairman of the budget committee. Mrs. Patricia Baldwin, member-at-large, is treasurer; secretary is Mrs. Norrine Cooke of the Delmar Fire Auxiliary.

4-H News

The fourteen members of the Feura Bush Angels 4-H Club will be canvassing the village of Feura Bush for the Albany County Unit of the American Cancer Society, on Friday, April 4th and 11th between 3 and 6 o'clock.

This will be the girls only community project of the year.

WITH THE GIRL SCOUTS

The Brownies of Troop #585 of the Delmar Elementary School are going to have a "Date With Daddy" on March 21. The Brownies have been practicing dancing the Mexican Hat Dance, Alley Cat, Hokey Pokey and the Bunny Hop. They are making the place mats, napkin holders and table flowers from felt which was kindly donated to the Troop, and will use these for the serving of refreshments.

So far this year the girls have made hula skirts and learned a hula song and dance routine which they will perform at the Juliette Low World Friendship Celebration at Clarksville in March. They have also worked with clay, making ceramic leaf ashtrays for their fathers. They have made nut cans for the holidays, roller bins for their mothers and macaroni wreaths.

The Brownies in the Troop are Amy Collen, Beth Dutton, Diane Gaviria, Susan Gilbert, Karen Kasius, Linda Love, Jean Quinn, Candy Sanderson, Luann Concora, Sharon Everingham, Amanda Haines, Grace Lombardi, Traci Parr, Betsy Ruslander, Catherine Seyler, Jennifer Stringham and Page Fursman.

The savings account that helps itself to your money.

We call it Automatic Savings, and it works something like this:
You tell us how much you want to save, and each month that amount disappears from your checking account automatically.
Nothing depends on your getting down to the bank. Nothing depends on your will power. Nothing depends on your family's will power.

The savings account just takes the money.
Of course, if you want to skip a month, you can always make a withdrawal. (And you can always call the whole deal off.)
On the other hand, if you want to keep saving, you don't have to do anything.
With an incentive like that, you could save a fortune.
ter Dinner there on February 7. The theme of the dinner was an International Night with the program and decorations centered around the Girl Scout Cabana in Mexico. Girl Scouts and Girl Guides from all over the world can meet and stay at the Cabana. It is near Cuernavaca, Mexico, and Scouts who come here learn to work and share with girls of other countries.

A special feature at the dinner was a drive to raise funds for the Juliette Low World Friendship Fund. The girls asked their fathers to measure their waists and give one cent per inch. $13 was collected for the fund.

The Girl Scout troops of the Onesquethaw and Normanskill Neighborhoods announce the annual cookie sale of the Hudson Valley Girl Scout Council to take place this year February 28 to March 11 with more than 11,000 Girl Scouts participating. The Council goal is 300,000 boxes. Already orders for 312,000 boxes have been placed.

The purpose of the sale is to provide an approved way of earning money for troop budgets. The troop retains 10¢ on each box sold, to be used for troop activities and community service projects not covered by troop dues. The council profits will help meet the maintenance and repair requirements of our three council-owned camps, and to supplement monies received from Community Chests and United Fund Drives so that the council may administer and maintain a complete Scouting program.

Mrs. Joseph Gerber, 92 Brokley Drive, Delmar, serves as the council cookie sale coordinator. Mrs. Gerber is a former Girl Scout leader and troop cookie chairman.

Girl Scouts will sell five varieties of cookies at 50¢ per box.

Each of the 45 neighborhoods throughout the counties of Albany, Rensselaer, Greene, Columbia, and a portion of Saratoga has its own cookie chairman who works directly with the troop cookie chairman in her neighborhood.

Cookies will be delivered throughout the council during the four days February 24-27 inclusive.

The annual Juliette Low World Friendship Fund Night will be observed at the Bethlehem Junior High School in Delmar on March 7 from 7:30 to 8:30 P.M. The Fund, set up in memory of the Girl Scouts' Founder, is used mainly to bring together girls of different cultural backgrounds to build bridges of understanding, knowledge and love. Girl Scouts and Girl Guides of different countries get together and become friends as they talk, work and camp together.

The speaker for the program will be Miss Heidi Fuller. She went to Germany with the help of the Juliette Low Friendship Fund. The Girl Scout troops in the area will bring their donations to the program on March 7.

New High

Russell Sage College in Al­bany and Troy reports a total registration of 3,999 for the spring term which began February 3. The women’s campus in Troy enrolled 1450; the Junior College of Albany, two-year, co-educational division of Sage, has 616; the evening division in Albany and Troy reports a record breaking 1933 men and women as compared to 1805 a year ago.

Going Coed

The College of Saint Rose, a four-year college for women since 1920, will become fully co-educational beginning with the fall semester in September, according to an announcement issued by Sister Margaret Keeshan, President.

Aware of the increasing numbers of community and junior college graduates who seek admission to a four-year college, the Board of Trustees moved to focus attention on recruitment of students particularly at the upper level or after the sophomore year. Since no housing facilities for men exist on the 22-acre cam­pus, all male students will be commuters.

The decision “reflects a growing conviction by all of us at the college that Saint Rose can con­tinue its long tradition of educational excellence only if it is willing to take those steps necessary to assure the continuing presence of private education as part of the American scene,” comment­ed Sister Margaret Keeshan.

The move is geared toward pro­viding “a more stimulating in­tellectual and social environ­ment,” the president continued; “we feel that people of both sex-es gain from an interchange of ideas and they should have this advantage in college.”

Coeducational in its evening, Saturday, and graduate pro­grams since the 1940’s, Saint Rose currently has more than 125 men enrolled as graduate stu­dents. Full-time undergraduate enrollment is 750 women, divided about evenly between resident students and commuters.

New Head

Edgar A. Sandman, president of Albany’s First Trust Com­pany, has been named to the vol­untary position of chairman for the 1970 Community Chest-Red Cross Joint Appeal fund cam­paign, according to Frank S. Lyons, chairman of the Joint Appeal.

Mr. Sandman headed the Spe­cial Gifts Division of the 1968 Joint Appeal campaign and serv­ed in the 1968 fund drive as vice chairman.

Sandman, in accepting the posi­tion, said he firmly believes the Joint Appeal campaign is a vital working force dedicated to the betterment of our community through voluntary support. This, he said, allows the 32 agencies represented in the annual fund drive to carry out their programs of vital service to the community.
without interference from government sources.

These services, in whole or in part, he continued, are made possible through the voluntary contributions of individuals, business and industry. In no significant way will the various public tax-supported health and welfare programs or the federal government's anti-poverty program reduce the continuing and expanding need for the Joint Appeal, its agencies and services.

New Exhibit

A collection of more than 100 items of American Indian artifacts has been prepared for public viewing at the New York State Museum. Describing the installation, G. Carroll Lindsay, Museum Director, explained that although these widely diverse examples of the craftsmanship of the first Americans span a period of roughly three hundred years, they are harmoniously exhibited against a background of an art-form as new as tomorrow — that of dynamic display techniques. Mr. Lindsay commended two Museum designers, Theodore Weyhe, senior exhibits designer, and Michael Gutbezahl, exhibit design supervisor, for their success in "blending the old and the new into effective concord, and at the same time enhancing the beauty of the individual pieces." He added that lighting, close viewability, coherence of placement within space limitations, and flow of traffic are some of the many considerations a modern museum must face.

Tools, charms, and necklaces which have been painstakingly made from stone, bone, ivory, shell, and horn are included in the display. Clay pottery is represented, as is a large assortment of basketry. Some baskets were so tightly woven they could hold water and were used for cooking by the addition of hot stones.

A large variety of wooden implements, from bowls and spoons to canoes and paddles, are included in the display. Skin and cloth used for clothing and adornment are exhibited on mannequins.

The exhibit was conceived and planned by Jennifer Chatfield, Museum anthropology planner, who assessed the Museum's collection and chose the items which most represent the broad range of artistic ability and taste of the American Indians.

In explaining the show's title, "Lo! The Rich Indian," Miss Chatfield said her purpose was to direct attention to aspects of American Indian culture which were anything but poor. "This would include, for example, the diverse and distinctive artistic traditions which enable us to pinpoint an object's origin in relation to culture area or even tribe."

She pointed out that artifacts in the exhibit are grouped according to basic raw materials instead of tribe or type of item. "A visitor can see the stylized relief carving on a North Pacific coast wooden box near the beautifully simple form of an eastern woodlands burl bowl which has no surface decoration."

Commenting on the current exhibit, Mr. Gutbezahl said that "grouping ethnological elements according to their basic materials, rather than by culture groups, allows innovative configurations of display media to project a new visual impact," adding that the open design and dramatic lighting exemplify a new approach to the planning of informative museum displays. "At this exhibition, the sophisticated museum-goer has an opportunity to preview the future while gaining fresh insight into the past," he said.

Mr. Gutbezahl is a graduate of Pratt Institute, School of Art and Design, and prior to joining the Museum staff, worked on design for the U.S. Pavilion at Expo '67, Montreal, with the New York State firm of Cambridge Seven Associates. Mr. Weyhe, a veteran with the Museum staff, has designed and supervised the installations of several of the newer exhibits including Paleontology Hall. He helped design "Dimensions of American Music" shown at the Saratoga Performing Arts Center last summer, and later at the State Museum.
BEADED BUCKSKIN SADDLE BAG, saddle blanket, and vests. A child might have worn the exquisitely beaded vest, even at play, without any other item of clothing! Western Plains.

WEST COAST, SOUTHWEST, AND INTERMOUNTAIN BASKETS — Some are so tightly woven they can hold water and were used for cooking by dropping hot stones into the water to make it boil. The baskets are exhibited in the modern open-case media which will be used in the new South Mall cultural center.

Following the trend toward changing exhibits in modern museums, Mr. Lindsay said the display will be removed in late spring to make room for an exhibit of historic military objects. The Indian display will be put in storage to await completion of the South Mall Museum and Library Center where it will again be available for viewing.

Pruning Shade Trees

Most tree experts, including Cooperative Extension's horticultural professors, recommend that most tree pruning be done in early spring. The reason for pruning between now and May is that most trees will heal quickest at this time.

As is always the case with nature, there are exceptions to this general rule. Trees that ‘bleed’ or exude sap in spring, should be pruned in the summer. Maples, beeches and birches are among those that should be pruned in summer. Early flowering trees such as dogwood, ornamental fruit trees and red bud, are usually pruned after bloom so that the blossoms can be enjoyed. Most other shade trees are best pruned while they are still dormant.

Extension's horticultural professors say that shade trees should be pruned as little as possible to improve the health or appearance of the tree. All dead and diseased branches should be removed. Broken branches also need pruning. As in all pruning, prune back to healthy wood and a side branch or the trunk. Branches that cross and rub together also need care to prevent wounds from rubbing.

Often large trees need to have the lower limbs removed to improve a view or to improve an onlookers view of your house. These heavy limbs are best removed by professionals who are equipped to handle the heavy weights involved.

When making pruning cuts, try to end up with a cut that is almost flush with the trunk or branch. No stubs should be left as these are ideal places for boring insects and diseases. However, a cut that is made too close will leave a larger scar than necessary and will take longer to heal.

Wounds larger than two inches or more in diameter should be treated with a tree wound paint. Orange shellac is one of the best materials to use immediately after pruning. This seals the wound and the alcohol in the shellac disinfects the wound. Since shellac is not durable repeated applications are necessary. If you prefer, the shellac painted wound can be covered with a commercial tree wound paint or a linseed oil base house paint that contains lead and zinc.

Prepared tree wound paints can be applied directly to the cut area without first using shellac. Some of these will not stick well to a moist area and the shellac base often helps. The tree wound paints are usually more durable and are now available in spray cans to make the job easier.
